

World Series Celebrities--Plank and Marquard

PLANK

ED IS ONLY 39.
HE SHOULD TAKE UP
BASEBALL AS A BUSINESS
WHEN HE GROWS UP.

Plank is the best southpaw pitguard in the ranking left-hander of the National organization. The fancher in the American League. Marquard, the past of both leagues, are sitting up nights in frantic anticipation of the day whenever the twain shall meet.

For that coming October afternoon appears a bit hazy in our imagination, hazy with flying figs as we see those valiant southern paws slashing round and round and back and forth in the sunlight.

It will be a battle of youngster against veteran, the long against the short, youth against experience.

On one side we see Eddie Plank, a "grand old man" --veteran of Gettysburg and some thirty-eight years of age--soon to be thirty-nine, with thirteen consecutive, successful seasons with the Athletics, toiling silently and seriously.

On the other side dazzles "Rube" --the brilliant--some fourteen years younger in age and some eight years younger in experience, oftentimes erratic, but always brilliant, toiling determinedly, yet smilingly, as he unwraps that pliant arm from around his wry neck and abruptly shoots 'em across.

They met once before--two years ago--and the veteran won. But this time, well, we shall see, but it does look like a big day for we fans and a bum day for ye left-hand batters.
